The vibrant adventures of JimJAZZ mouse... and his musical friends

Sweet sounds for cool kids

The JimJAZZ mouse series of books is sure to strike the right note with kids aged three and up. The series takes a unique, contemporary approach to introducing children to how music is made. Individual instruments are brought to life as colourful characters. Children learn how JimJAZZ's music is produced and recorded on a home computer and then uploaded onto the internet. Delightful illustrations complement the engaging adventures of JimJAZZ and the musical friends who visit him at his studio in Fromage Cottage. Each book also features the musical story of a particular instrument, for example 'the story of the piano'. The series is backed up with a fun-filled and interactive website at www.jimjazzmouse.com. Fifteen of the books feature musical instruments in three groups - woodwind and brass, strings and piano, percussion and keyboard - and there is one further title in an ecology and technology group. JimJAZZ mouse is a body of work created and written by David Hughes, with illustrations by Andy Everist-Stewart and Jane Messore. It also includes a hardback book with an animated DVD, with music and narrative. The JimJAZZ books and website are published by SeaSquirt Publications.

JimJAZZ mouse will not give up. He takes a deep breath and blows his hardest ever...

Whoosh

Three brightly coloured feathers shoot across the room like arrows.

"What's that?" shouts Toby. "Tell my tail," says JimJAZZ. "Some of Marty Macaw's mouling feathers must have stuck inside your bell."
